BOY'S SLAYER IS NOW KNOWN TO THE POLICE

Buffalo, Nov. 18.—It was stated on good police authority, this afternoon, that the slayer of little Joseph Josephine is known to the police of Buffalo, Lackawanna and Boston. It is no vague identification. The man's name, address, business connections and social standing—everything but his present whereabouts—is known to the officers of the law, officials here declare.

So certain are the police officials that they are right in their deductions, that Chief of Police Ray R. Glies, of Lackawanna, says publicly that an arrest may be made before night.

Buffalo police are tight lipped about the case, but it is learned that the murderer of the Josephine boy was employed up to a year ago by the Lackawanna Steel Company, that he was well connected socially, that in his right mind he was a valuable employee, that there were times when he exhibited the characteristics of the man that he frequently was away from the steel city for weeks at a time during his employment there, that he finally was driven out of the Lackawanna steel plant he went to Boston.

It is understood that up to Sunday, a week ago, he was in Boston, but on getting a hint of the discovery of the boy's body he left for parts unknown.

Sherwood Waiting For Judson Before Drawing Complaints

Grand Juror of Westport Unable to Say Who Will Be Indicted

Grand Juror Harry R. Sherwood of Westport will have a conference with State's Attorney Stiles Judson this week regarding the complaint or complaints to be drawn against the New Haven railroad officials responsible for the loss of life in the wreck of the Springfield express at Westport.

Attorney Sherwood said this afternoon that he is not prepared to say whether the directors of the railroad can be held responsible on a criminal charge or whether the matter must be put up to the officials who directly had charge of the equipment and roadbed. Attorney Sherwood declared he would confer with State's Attorney Judson upon this point before giving any opinion.

Grand Juror Judson has already expressed his intention of pushing the criminal charges against the railroad officials. He will base his action upon the finding of coroner Thelan who found that the railroad company was guilty of "concurring responsibility" in the Westport wreck.

Mr. Judson was out of town today.

MURDER TRUNK IS SPIRITED AWAY

Another Mystery For Sleuths on Georgetown Case to Solve — Dougherty Expects Arrest

Georgetown, Nov. 18.—To add to their troubles, the state police and New York detectives investigating the trunk murder mystery, are, today, up against another mystery. When the remains of the murdered woman were taken to the police station, the body of the murdered woman is supposed to have been shipped from New York to the police station at Branchville, small portions of the trunk were taken as exhibits. Photographs of the skeleton of the trunk were taken and the trunk was taken to the police station at Branchville, small portions of the trunk were taken as exhibits. Photographs of the skeleton of the trunk were taken and the trunk was taken to the police station at Branchville, small portions of the trunk were taken as exhibits.

Sunday, when officers went once again to the scene there was nothing there. Every bit of the remains of the trunk, every little scrap of cloth and even the ashes of the fire in which the trunk had been burned had been taken away and the place was as clean as a whistle. Now the police want to know who did the cleanup act.

New York, Nov. 18.—Commissioner Dougherty said today he was confident that the arrest of the slayers of the trunk murder mystery was not far away. Search for the three men and little daughter of the victim is being prosecuted vigorously throughout New York and adjoining states.

RELIGIOUS ISSUE IS UPHELD BY A. F. OF L. TODAY

Convention Votes Strongly Against Resolution Intended to Bar Out Future Discussions on Religion

Rochester, Nov. 18.—The religious issue was raised and settled, so far as the American Federation of Labor is concerned at the 32nd annual convention of that body, in session here, today. The question came up through the adverse report of the resolutions committee on a resolution by Delegate Emil Arnold which provided that religious and anti-religious discussion should be barred from future conventions. It was intended as a rebuke to Rev. Peter Deitz, of Milwaukee, who represents the American Federation of Catholic Socialists, and who, last week in the course of an address, proclaimed the position of his church with reference to Socialism. The resolution report heated debate.

Delegate William Rodriguez, of the Painters and Decorators, took issue with the committee and defended the resolution. He said that the convention included men of all religious beliefs and some of no religion whatever. He said that the committee should be allowed to present the attitude of any particular sect or church on religious questions.

To the surprise of many of the delegates, the Socialists present concurred in the committee's report and opposed the resolution. They also realized that if the fraternal delegates from church organizations were debarred from the convention, their position on social problems they themselves might be refused the privilege of advocating Socialism in the convention.

Delegate Max Hayes, of the Typographical Union declared that he, as a Socialist, welcomed the free discussion of all questions related to labor either directly or indirectly. The committee's report was adopted with few dissenting votes.

A minimum wage act applying to women workers in New York state, citizenship for the Porto Ricans, a bill before the Tennessee legislature providing that convicts serving terms of less than five years be employed on the public roads so as to eliminate convict competition with the skilled trades and a resolution by President Gompers favoring the settlement of all international disputes by arbitration and condemning war were among the matters reported by the resolutions committee on which the federation acted favorably, today.

THANKSGIVING HOLIDAY FOR LETTER CARRIERS?

The idea of allowing the letter carriers a holiday on Thanksgiving seems to meet with the approval of the public. The idea is a pronounced disapproval of the plan, Postmaster W. H. Marigold will allow the local carriers that day. Mr. Marigold believes that the public could with little inconvenience go without a mail delivery on Thanksgiving day, especially since that day's mail isn't usually heavy.

In the past there has been one early delivery on Thanksgiving. This has broken up the day for the mail carriers and given them practically no holiday at all. Postmaster Marigold desires to know if the public would disapprove of the plan to do away with this one delivery. The Christmas and New Year mail is so heavy that the day after Thanksgiving would be convenient to give the carriers a holiday. Postmaster Marigold has secured permission to give the men a full holiday this year. It only remains for the public to manifest its approval. It wants to hear from people on the subject.

NEW HOME RULE CLAUSE IS TO BE SUBMITTED

London, Nov. 18.—Though expressing himself convinced that reconsideration was the best method of eliminating the unsatisfactory financial clause which the conservatives forced into the home rule bill by a snap vote, last week, Premier Asquith agreed today to the submission of an entirely new clause. The House of Commons, which was only conservative when the last vote was taken through the absence of a large number of liberal members, then nullified the clause previously adopted and everything was ready for a fresh start. Much time was lost, however, on account of the method adopted. The conservatives were expected to resort to obstructive tactics.
